

(Left and right) Children and Denby employees gather to see Princess Anne.

(Below) Barry Davison at work in the Casting department under the Princesses' watchful eye.

The Princess Royal unveils a plaque to commemorate her visit. With her is Denby Holdings Chairman, Paul McGowan.

Princess Anne met Unity members when she visited Denby Pottery in September to commemorate 200 years of pottery making at the original Denby site.

The Princess Royal first looked around the Visitor Centre before taking a tour of Derbyshire's largest pottery to view production processes.

During her tour, which ended in the Design Studio, she was introduced to many long serving employees, including Unity members.

Princess Anne said she was impressed by the company's successful integration of new technology with traditional hand skills.

HRH Princess Anne Denby's Royal visitor

(Right) Princess Anne with, left to right, David Fearn, Steve Swift and Gary Eadie in the Mug & Cup Plant department. (Below) The Princess Royal shakes hands with SKK2 operator Paul Shepperd while Graham Strange and Keith Durose look on; and, below right, watches Georgia Plintstone at work in the Glazing department.

